This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1915 edition. Excerpt: ... upon State statutes. Such statutes are practically bankruptcy acts, operating, however, only to the extent of the power and jurisdiction of State authority. "Voluntary assignments for the benefit of creditors, on the other hand, as practised in this and other States, do not originate in the State statutes, but in the common-law power of the debtor to dispose of his property. The statutes of this State passed in 1800, and subsequent acts, regulate to a certain extent this power of distribution, and provide various securities therefor. To a considerable extent, therefore, these statutes, and assignments made in conformity with them, though they make no provision for the discharge of the debtor, do cover in part the original purpose of bankruptcy laws, namely, the equal distribution of the debtor's property among his creditors. The New York Statutes, nevertheless, allow, besides preferences to employees, preferences to other creditors, at the debtor's option, to the extent of one-third of the assets (see Central N. Bank v. Seligman, 138 N. Y. 435); in this regard being, therefore, directly opposed to that equality of distribution which bankruptcy laws aim to secure. Though the precise limits of the terms 'bankruptcy' and 'insolvency,' in defining the character of statutes, may not be easy to determine (see Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat 194-6; In re Klien, 1 How. (U. S.) 377. I do not think that a general assignment made in conformity with laws like those of the State of New York, can be considered 'as a proceeding commenced under State insolvency laws' within the meaning of the last paragraph of the Act of 1898; and the question presented on this motion must therefore be decided upon the general principles of bankruptcy law and...
