Tropical Storm Kathleen James L Larson

Kathleen was the first tropical storm to hit California in 37 years. When it came ashore near Punta San Pablo, Baja California shortly after midnight September 10, 1976, it was a hurricane. As it moved north through mountainous terrain the winds decreased. By early morning of that same day the National Weather Service downgraded Kathleen to a tropical storm. As the storm passed through California, it caused widespread flooding in parts of San Diego, Imperial, Riverside and San Bernardino Counties, leaving in its wake 10 people dead, hundreds of homes damaged, and heavy crop damage. --- from book's 1st page
