NiVo: Journal for Architecture and Cement Composite (English and French Edition)

In NiVo the tradition of Eternit AG's own architecture journals continues to live. The new journal for architecture and cement composite, under the direction of an international editorial enterprise acting independently of the firm, creates the opportunity for an unconventional view of fascinating topics from architecture, design and art. At its centre are the projects, views, actions and thoughts of extraordinary people, and of these, in particular, lesser known, dedicated individuals from within the architecture scene are to be provided with a platform. Regular columns, a dossier on a changing central theme and a panorama from the multifaceted world of cement composite will be condensed into an internal journal unique in its design, using high-quality texts written internally and by guest writers as well as photographic reportages or exclusive photographic essays, often published now for the first time.
